With each layer I unfold, I reveal more of myself.

Through the process of engaging with this collection of works, I gained an understanding that we are constantly transforming and expanding. As we grow our spirits we have to shed previous versions of oneself, to create space for the emergence of our new identities.

Embracing change as an integral aspect of life, I found no better way to welcome it than by delving into new, undiscovered areas of my creativity. Change has many characteristics - full of hope for the possibilities that a new chapter can bring, yet fearful of the unfamiliar.

By letting go of these old layers, it enables us to open up for new adventures, expand our knowledge and discover more about ourselves.

I encourage you to embark on a similar journey of self-discovery. Explore the unknown depths of your being and discover the wealth of untapped potential within you.
